The Camp

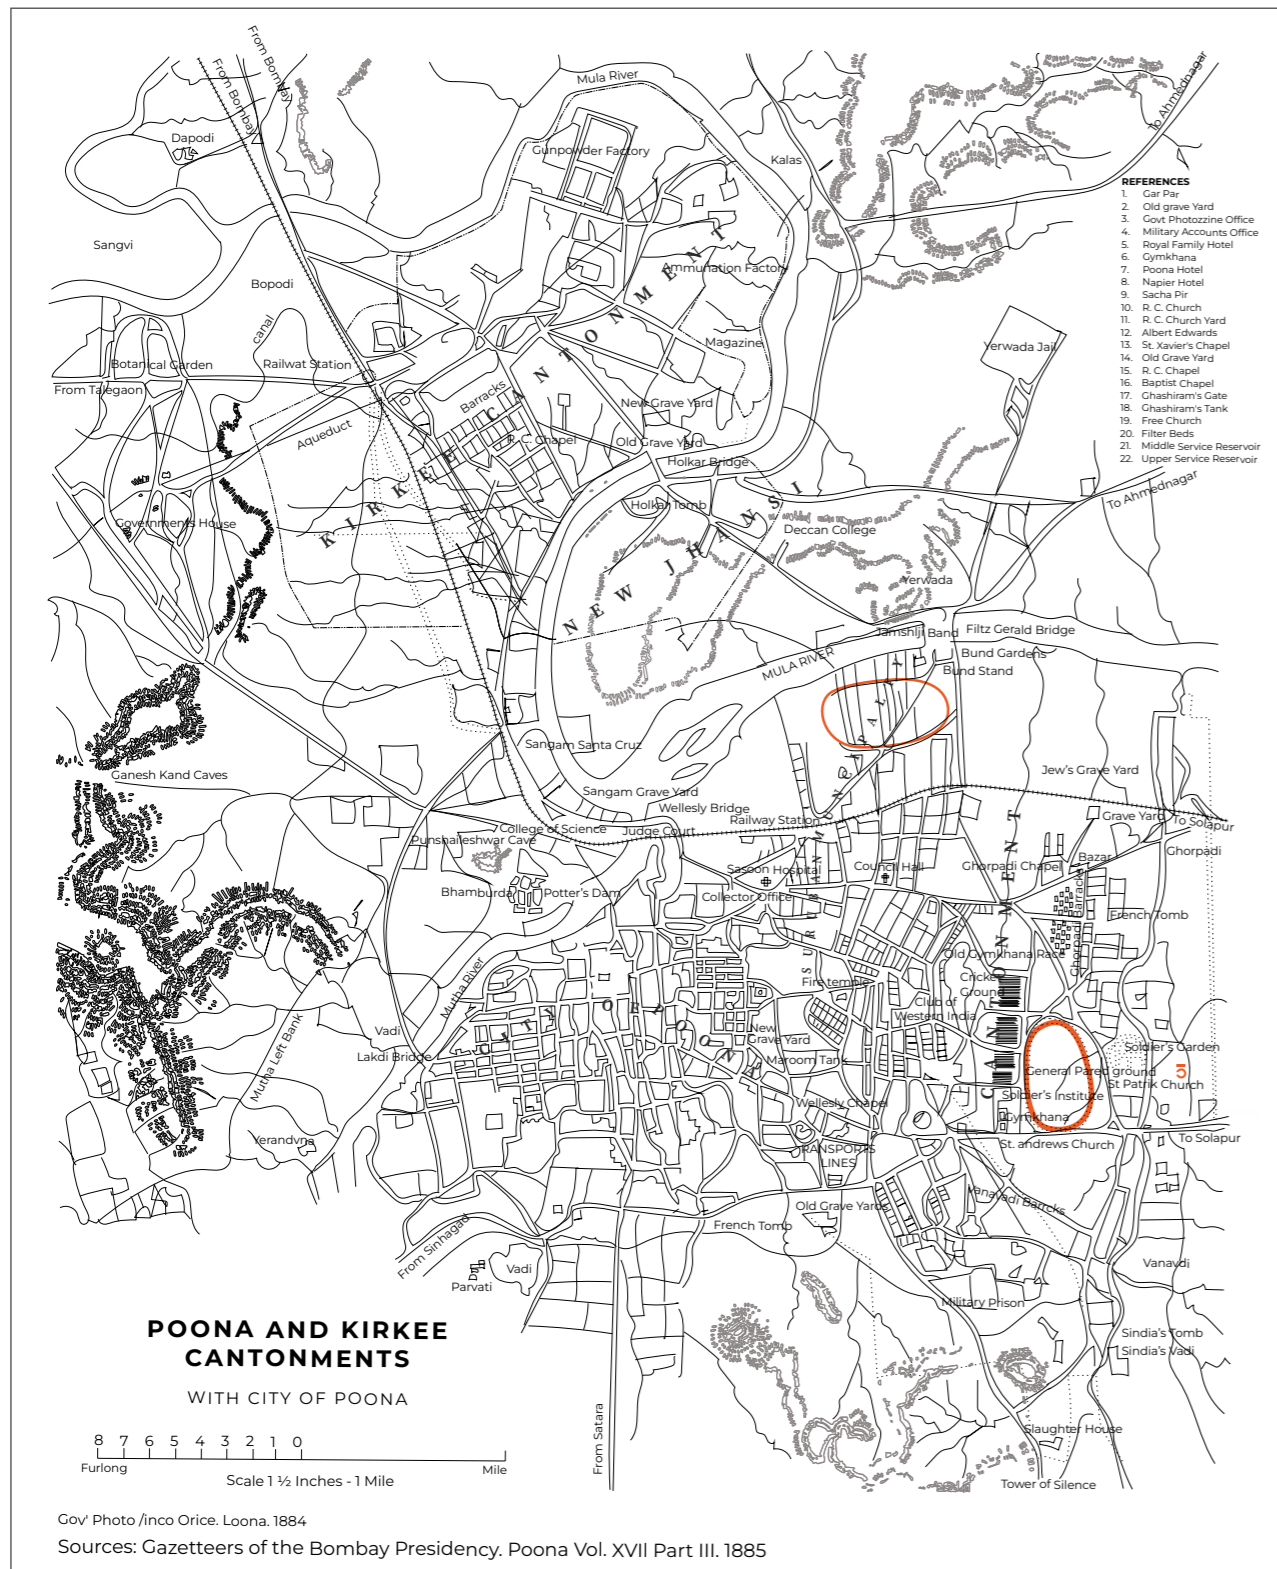

EST 1817

Pune Cantonment, also known as Camp, is a military cantonment located in the city of Pune, India. It was established in 1817 for accommodating troops of the British Army.

A central belt of about 130 acres had to be kept open for military use – for training drills, parades and sports. The rest of the area around this open, barren space was used to set up barracks for troops, both European and native, and for messes, stores, armouries, hospitals and other such structures.

The limit of the cantonment was extended in 1822. In 1963, Ghorpuri Village (Ghorpadi), Fatima Nagar and Mundhwa village were merged into cantonment area.

The boundaries comprising of an extensive open area between the two natural streams, the Manik Nala on the west and the Bhairoba Nala on the east, and including the two villages of Chorpadi and Wanawadi, were finalised in 1827.

The Southern Command

EST 1895

The Great Indian Rebellion of 1857 not just resulted in the transfer of power from the East India Company to the British Crown but also a reorganisation of existing military formations. With effect from April 1, 1895, the Presidency Armies were abolished to form the Indian Army. Four separate commands, Bombay, Bengal, Punjab and Madras came into existence with the Bombay Command being headquartered in Pune since April 1, 1895, the day which marks the raising of the command in Pune.

The formation sign of the Southern Command is the Crux commonly known as the Southern Cross. The sign is based on the four brightest stars of the Crux constellation which has been a standard of navigation for millennia. As per Hindu astronomy, the Crux is referred to as Trishanku, a character in Hindu mythology.

The Race Course

EST 1830

The history of the RWITC (Royal Western India Turf Club) Pune Race Course dates back to the early 1800s when horse racing was introduced to the city. The first horse race in Pune was held in 1819, and over the years, the sport gained popularity among the city's elite. The Race Course is spread over 118 acres in the heart of the city.

The RWITC Pune Race Course is known for hosting some of the most prestigious horse racing events in India, including the Pune Derby, The RWITC Gold Cup, Independence Cup, Southern Command Cup and many more.

The Race Course, circa 1910: The hub for all Europeans during the 'Season' Racing events were regarded as brilliant social occasions, with balls and tea parties held after the races.

The RWITC Pune Race Course remains an important part of the city’s cultural and sporting heritage and is considered one of the most picturesque racecourses in India.

The Pune Race Course was moved from the Boat Club to its current location in 1830 and was constructed on a 118-acre plot of land in the heart of the city.

The Empress Botanical Garden

EST 1838

The area that is known as Empress Garden today was bought by the British from a local Peshwa Sardar in 1838. In 1880, the garden was brought under the aegis of the Agri-Horticultural Society of Western India.

Empress Botanical Garden, a green paradise in the heart of Pune, is a bio-diverse expanse situated near Pune Race Course.

1830
Sir John Malcolm, then Governor of Bombay, established a trust called Agri-Horticultural Society of Western India in the year 1830.

A forum named “Friends of Empress Garden” holds monthly meetings in the Garden. Members and invitees discuss various issues related to the environment and nature conservation.

The salient feature of the Empress Botanical Gardens is that the original trees have not been touched and therefore, we are able to see and appreciate 250-300 years old Banyan and majestically tall White Shireesh trees even today.
